Planets & Balances -- JANUARY '87

YIPPEE!!! ALL PLANETS DIRECT (Forwards)!

AIR (Thinking) none 'til 1/18, then average; FIRE (Willpower) low 1/1-1/6, then high-to-very-high; WATER (Emotionalism) very high 'til 1/8, then average; EARTH (Stability/Practicality) high 'til 1/20, then low.

CREATIVE (Planning) low 'til 1/20, then average; ACTIVE (Doingness) high 'til 1/18, then average-to-low; EVALUATIVE (Retrospect/Criticism) high all month.

STILL TENDENCIES TO "STEAMY" EVALUATIONS THIS MONTH; HOWEVER, MORE TENDENCIES (than December) TO STABILITY & PRACTICALITY COMBINED WITH "EVENER" (than December) CREATIVE-ACTIVE EVALUATIVE BALANCES SHOULD "LEVEL THINGS OUT" A BIT.

Continue to give effort & thought to avoiding "steamy" or explosive Criticalness and excessive Willfulness.

MAGICAL MEDICINE - BLENDING CHINESE MEDICINE AND MAGIC

As we were discussing in last month's column, there are various ways to deal with excess water element or damp in the body.

In cases of dry skin or the tendency to get rashes, such as acne, hives, or herpes (often from old heat in the blood) and/or the person doesn't sweat enough, is heat or sun intolerant, flow the water out through the skin.

One way to accomplish this would be to use the Chalice in an inward and downward flowing position at the naval and at two points directly above and below the naval, about one inch. The upper point is Shui Fen (water divisions or separating the waters). The naval is Shen Que (spirit shrine), and the lower is Yin Jiao (Yin crossing).

If the skin or ability to sweat is to be affected, the Athame might be used in a sweeping mode, perhaps in the purple or blue tones, after starting the water flow with the Chalice; then any excess fire can be pulled.

In most cases I prefer to direct it with the Athame back to the spleen or kidneys. Use the Athame at points on center about two and three inches below the naval - the upper point influencing the spleen (Chi Hai -- Sea of Chi), and the lower point influencing the kidneys (Guan Yuan -- Gate of Original Life).

Excess fire also can be pulled out of the bottom of the feet, which will help to "ground" the person and create proper energy flows - from top to bottom.

If the Athame is used to return heat to an organ or specific area, be careful not to pull out too much fire, using the Athame in a pulling or dispersing mode, but as soon as the person feels a flow to that area, relaxing the pulling and making small clockwise circles with the handle of the Athame, while slowly pulling it away from the body.

	Limitation		The Abysmal (Water)

Late December (20-31) looks like a time for carefully examining our situations for the actual limitations therein, accommodating ourselves to those limitations, and for limiting our activities to our own home-spaces. ("Not going out of the door and the courtyard is without blame.")

TAKE HEED OF ACTUAL LIMITATIONS IN YOUR SITUATION; PAY ATTENTION TO HARMONIOUS CONDUCT WITHIN THOSE; AND LIMIT YOUR ACTIVITIES TO THOSE ACCOMPLISHABLE WITHIN YOUR OWN "SPACE".

Early January (1-10) looks like a time when we may have become so used to the dangers or negative influences in our environment that our alertness will relax letting us be led astray. ("In the abyss one falls into a pit, misfortune.")

DO NOT BLIND YOURSELF TO DANGERS OR NEGATIVE INFLUENCES IN YOUR ENVIRONMENT LEST YOU CARELESSLY BECOME PREY FOR THEM. WATCH YOUR ETHICS!!!

Put yourself and "your house" in order in accord with your real situation; be alert to dangers & negative influences you may overlook because of familiarity; be concerned with personal balance & ethics, mind your own business.

EARTHWATCH:

A strong earthquake of 5.2 on the Richter scale shook Northern California at 3:33 pm on November 22. The quake, on the San Andres Fault, was centered 40 miles Southwest of Eureka off the Pacific Coast.. There was no Tsuname or the misnamed Tidal Wave, although there was a considerable amount of damage in Eureka, Scotia and Fortuna. There were numerous aftershocks.

The San Andres Fault from San Francisco down to the San Joaquin Valley runs Northwest to the Southeast; but just West and North of the San Bernadino Mountains, the fault bends almost exactly East-West for awhile. Then, from the Northern end of the Salton Sea depression it again turns back Northwest to Southeast to the Gulf of California in Mexico. In geological terms, Southern California is ten (10) times more active seismically than the rest of the Earth; yet this part of the state contributes more than any other to the economic life of the USA.

In the last 25 years, the most destructive earthquake, in terms of death and damage in California, was produced by movement on a small fault a little way from the San Andres in the San Fernando earthquake of 1971. In that quake of 6.6, there were 58 deaths, almost 5,000 injuries and damage of nearly $500,000,000.

In a great earthquake (8.0 or larger), Los Angeles, one of the most densely populated regions of the state, could find that the San Fernando quake was a small quake as California quakes go, and we can be pretty sure that the quake will come in our lifetime. More about that in the next issue.

So far in 1986, there have been these quakes: on March 31, in Fremont (near San Francisco on the Hayward Fault), six people were hurt in a 5.7 quake; the Palm Springs-Morango area on the San Andres Fault shook on July 8 with a 6.0 quake. There were 51 homes destroyed and 29 people hurt; then on an unnamed fault in the Newport-San Diago area, a 5.8 quake killed one person and damaged 50 buildings on July 18; and on July 20, in the Bishop area on the Sierra Nevada fault in the Owens Valley, 20 mobile homes were damaged in a quake that measured 6.0.

THE "GURU'S CLAY FEET"

Last night, I participated in one of the more complex and interesting lessons of my life. Fortunately it waited till I had progressed far enough to recognize it was time to bring the lesson to an end. Other searchers well along their paths shared the experience, and their insights, with me.

What happened? The messenger stayed too long! The path set forth in the "message", and the "path" the messenger walked, appeared to get farther and farther apart, and more incongruous and incompatible! It became harder to separate the message from the messenger!

One of the confusing aspects of the "lesson" was that it appeared to all of us that a "guru" was the bearer of a positive and helpful teaching. While none of us agreed with every detail in the metaphor, it seemed to have considerable validity. Did the "guru" ever claim to be a guru? Or was that our projection born of our eagerness to find a short-cut to some spiritual truths? Did the "guru" recognize being projected on a pedestal? Did the vanity and glamor of "guru-ship" lead a perfectly human teacher to not remove or deny the "guru" pedestal / trap projection?

It would be easy to over-simplify what went wrong, and write off the un-masked "guru" as a "black hat". Recognizing the "guru's" clay feet may distract us from our own similar condition! In the course of the evening when the confrontation with the "guru" took place, one particularly insightful question put things "on track". Did the "guru's" personhood or worthiness have any relevance? Other questions we had to deal with: Was the guru an impersonal "lesson on two feet" to bring each of us to learn / re-learn the lesson of the dangers of looking for "answers" out there, rather than inside ourselves? Did the integrity of the "guru" matter? Was the "guru", with or without clay feet, merely a negatively charged distraction? Could each of us, as appropriate for the individual, learn those lessons that the experience provided? Did it strengthen or weaken the friendships which grew around the experience? When we get together again, can we go on from the "now" with current issues, or will we waste time "flogging the dead horse" on which we did the autopsy together?

What makes me feel best about the experience was that in the group process, one of the participants suggested we focus not on the "guru" or "pseudo-guru", but our own individual parts in the drama. The group willingly and eagerly agreed, and we moved out of the same negative and judgemental behavior which we were criticizing in the "guru", and moved into positive self-examination, and courageous sharing of the personal lessons learned! That turned a negative incident into a positive learning experience!

The "Guru's Clay Feet" - cont'd:

Perhaps the "guru" was there to teach us several very positive lessons which had very little to do with the original "message" the messenger was carrying! How often in life, we are so intently focused on the "wrong ball", we miss the major part of the action! People are almost always distracted by the "emotional red herring" which engages our energies and blinds us to the broader context of the transaction.

Another example at a safer distance is the "illusionist" who distracts us from what is going on with a skillful and clever line of patter to very deliberately pull our attention away from the object being manipulated, while he very skillfully performs what is mis-labelled "magic" on stage! For many years at trade shows I worked with and watched a very skilled illusionist, Don Allen. As my hospitality suite time permitted, I observed him from every angle, knowing what he was going to do, and when. Having heard his distracting chatter over and over again, I hate to admit I never could "keep my eye on the ball"! I never caught the prestidigitation while it was being performed!

Does that only happen "on stage?" I'm afraid life is just such a stage. The myriad of distractions constantly keep us from seeing the real patterns, learning the real lessons, and fully experiencing the events which help us to grow or keep us in pain, depending on where our attention is focused!

From meditation or study, alone and inside ourselves we are disconnected from real-life outside experience with others, we limit the lessons we can learn! The experiences we have with others create the context to teach ourselves the lessons we need to learn! It is not the things others teach us that we really learn!

If I felt I had fully and finally learned the lesson, I could write a much clearer and more coherent piece! I feel I have only attained another plateau and found a temporary resting place to assimilate this lesson, and the next chapter will confront me in another context, time, place, and with different participants.

May we all learn to trust and hold our focus, on the events and teachings we need to learn, and avoid the distractions that make it necessary to repeat the lessons over and over again, until we finally learn them! So be it.

World Instant of Cooperation

A Concern or Two

As a Magical Practitioner, the World Instant of Cooperation scheduled for Noon Greenwich Time, December 31, has a lot in favor of it in Principle, IF the Sole Idea is for people to spend 1 hour radiating energies of calm and caring into the world environment that all (including deity & non-human levels!!!) may experience such Positivism who care to.

However, it is My Concern that there are a number of Persons, Groups & Influences who will undertake to Enforce this Energy on Particular Other People, Groups, &/or Influences rather than merely Allowing the Energy to Pervade the Environment as it Will.

It is My Opinion that such Direction of the Energy is COUNTER to the Purpose of the Exercise AND will "Net" Anyone so attempting such Direction according to Personal "Agendas" some VERY Severe "Backlash" effects.

If you're going to Participate, Don't underestimate Enforcement of Your Ideas of "Peace" on Others you may be inclined to "do it to"!!

I have said it!

Let's Talk Runes

FOR ALL THAT HAS BEEN, THANKS!
TO ALL THAT SHALL BE, YES!
--Dag Hammarskjold--

(ᚦ) THURISAZ is a rune of Fregr's eight. This rune is the symbol of a gateway. A marker of the frontier between the mundane and Heaven. This rune symbolizes a readiness to experience the Divine, an illumination of experience, so that the meaning will show through.

Because of the transformal influences represented, one is shown a reflection of that which is within. What is shown by this relection should be examined before attempting further progress toward a goal.

If this rune be drawn or cast reversed, notice is served of a quickening of the pace of a person's development. Yet there will be reasons to stop and consider certain influences along the path. Take advantage of these opportunities to examine the old and integrate the new. The quality of this passage will be determined by attitude.

Either way, this rune is one of patience, contemplation, and understanding. Before passing through the gateway, pause to think about and understand your past. The victories, defeats, joys, sorrows, and lessons. Then bless and set aside the past. In this way, a person can reclaim their power. This is the time to pass through the gateway.

Let's Talk Runes - cont'd

(ᚾ) NAUTHIZ is a rune of Hagal's eight. This rune is a rune of constraint, necessity and pain. When drawn or cast upright, this is an indicator of your own negative or limiting influences. One is advised not to take this world too personally. The setbacks, denials and troubles are some of our teachers and guides.

If this rune be cast or drawn reversed, this is an indicator of negative or limiting influences from other persons. One is advised to control their anger and impulses, to persevere with modesty and level-headedness.

Either way; this is a time to restore balance, if not harmony, to one's affairs. When one cannot go to sea, mend your nets and sails. It has been said that times of greatest difficulty bring the greatest victory; the deeper darkness leads to the brightest light. Thus can difficulty be a lesson to change negatives to positives. Restraint, goodwill and perseverance are the best method to deal with the hardship and difficulty that are part of this period of time.

(ᛗ) EHWAZ is a rune of Tyr's eight. This rune is representative of movement, shifts and transition. The horse is often associated with this rune. This rune also symbolizes the fostering, sharing and illumination that comes with movement and growth.

Drawn or cast upright, this rune indicates positive and progressive movement toward one's goal. This rune encourages you to be confident of your present position, and to tend to matters of the future with steadfastness and personal moral effort.

If drawn or cast reversed, one is advised of a movement that blocks or appears to block the sequence of correct action. You are advised to consider all actions or options. This includes the option of not doing. Consider what is appropriate for you and what would constitute timely action.

In both interpretations, remember that all situations and relationships undergo movement and transition. This is to allow for growth and satisfaction of those people involved in a situation or relationship. Sometimes we ride the horse, sometimes we walk.

VOICE OF THE TURTLE:

Women's & Men's Mysteries?

For almost ten years now, there has been great debate and finger-pointing concerning the various ways and means by which Women have been "done to" in our Judeo-Christian based "Patriarchal" Culture -- the Women (of course!) holding men to blame for Women's condition.

Last Summer, the E.L.F. folk published a list of "Men's Mysteries" clearly and accurately detailing the things Men are Taught (likewise by our Judeo-Christian based Culture) that make men as much "slaves" as women, though in slightly different ways; and this short article implied that mothers were a major source of blame for this.

And how many times have each of you in this lifetime heard references to some "War Between the Sexes" (an idea promoted for several hundred years in our Culture-base) and statements that Women will never understand Men, nor will Men ever understand Women?

The Real "Mystery" at this point is how Women & Men have managed to have any decent Communications and Relationships in the face of the ways we've ALL been "done to" in this Culture!!!

Now, we've come to World-Change Time, the Age of Enlightenment, or "the Second Coming" (or however you think of it!); and the "Prime Directive" seems to be that ALL of us need to "Open Up" and "Love & Trust" each other Regardless of sex if our species is to continue on Earth.

I would suggest as a Beginning to meeting this Requirement we must ALL Recognize that Men are NOT the source of Women's problems; Women are NOT the source of Men's problems; we are ALL Victims of a Culture-System that Relies on Women's & Men's blaming each other for the problems to maintain its power over us.

With this Recognition as a Base, let us THEN undertake to understand Each Other's AND OUR OWN Mistaken Beliefs (Acquired from our Culture-System!) about Women AND Men AND about Each's "Proper Place" in Earth's Ecology (Material AND Spiritual!).

Perhaps THEN we may begin REALLY relating to Each Other as Real People with REAL love and caring being Exchanged.

We will NOT achieve this by Placing Blame on Other Victims!!!

I Have Said It!
